RUN BY A MOTHER-DAUGHTER TEAM, Montgomery Lee Fine Art represents a wide range of genres including impressionist and contemporary landscape paintings, wildlife sculptures, figurative pieces, and still-lives. Established in 1996, the gallery has carefully cultivated its collection to showcase some of the West's most-collected artists.

Customers range from seasoned collectors to first-time buyers who can always expect a fresh new inventory of works by many sought-after artists. "We are always excited when new work comes in," says owner Linda Lee. "We feel our staff is very knowledgeable and fun to work with."

In the end, a person needs to love what they are buying, with the investment as a secondary, yet important aspect. Montgomery Lee Fine Art takes pride in helping clients build collections they can be proud of.

MAREN BARGREEN WORKED IN PARK CITY GALLERIES for nearly five years. "I always knew that eventually I would open my own gallery," she says.

Gallery MAR was founded in 2007 and opened its doors in May 2008. Her goals are simple: "I want to showcase exquisite, noncommercial artwork," she says. "And I want to offer personalized customer service while promoting emerging artists."

Purchasing a work of art can be intimidating to many people, especially those new to collecting, who are still unsure about their own tastes as well as the art market. "Novice as well as seasoned collectors are looking for the most collectible, up-and-coming talent. All collectors want value along with gracious service." Gallery MAR offers outstanding service to all collectors, and works to broaden their appreciation of art without using "artspeak." Bargreen considers collectors and artists friends, not just customers, and keeps in close contact with them in a variety of ways. "My Gallery MAR blog, the gallery Web site and e-mail newsletter bring collectors into a virtual gallery," she says.
